

Roman Harbich Appointed New Chief Operating Officer of Aquin Components

Frankfurt, 21st May 2007. Roman Harbich was appointed Managing Director and COO of Aquin Components GmbH on 25th April. In his new role, Mr Harbich is responsible for sales, marketing and professional services. This appointment will expand on the senior management capability of the Aquin board in order to boost growth and drive international expansion.

Before joining Aquin, Roman Harbich worked as Executive Director and General Manager Europe for SmartStream Technologies, where he also headed one of the largest research centres and a number of international subsidiaries. Before working at SmartStream Technologies, Roman Harbich served as a sales director and business unit director at NCR and AT&T Global Information Solutions. During his career, Mr Harbich has gathered considerable experience in setting up and supervising heterogeneous sales structures and in heading development, support and product management organisations. "Aquin is a company with an impressive potential for growth", commented Roman Harbich on his new position. "Here at Aquin I can apply all my process expertise and experience in strategic and operational business to strengthen the market-oriented business units and push Aquin's international expansion."
